

Help them help themselves.

End Misconception. Beat Recidivism. And Commence Empowerment.

In response to ongoing, legislatively directed change, the diversion of offenders from state prison to county control has been actively implemented in California since 2011. Community agencies and traditionally-trained behavioral health clinicians are being included in plans to develop cost effective solutions that promote rehabilitation and reduce recidivism as this population reintegrates into their communities statewide.

Many clinicians are not yet trained to respond to these needs. EMBRACE is an exclusive OLA training program for clinicians interested in helping the formally incarcerated lead productive lives while also positively impacting a criminal justice system seeking change.
